"But I guess, yes. . . . it'd have to have been like that. Your kids today don't seem to have changed all that much either. "How do you mean?" Kath asked..Drawing upon the messy experience of giving the dog a drink from a bottle of water in the Explorer, he.outbuildings. With haste, he passes among them..What had impressed him the most was the way the kids seemed to be involved in everything that was going on just as much as the grown-ups. They didn't come across like kids at all, but more like small people who were busy finding out how things were done. In a room two posts back, he had glimpsed a couple of kids who couldn't have been more than twelve probing carefully and with deep frowns of concentration inside the electronics of a piece of equipment that must have cost millions. The older Chironian with them just watched over their shoulders and offered occasional suggestions. It made sense, Driscoll thought. Treat them as if they're responsible, and they act responsibly; give them bits of cheap plastic to throw around, and they act like it's cheap plastic. Or maybe the Chironians just had good insurance on their equipment.. "Oh, Mother's far too terribly smart to put any faith in Western medicine. If it pleases them to say so, why should we mind?".Bernard nodded and seemed relieved, but his expression was still far from happy as he turned toward Kath, who had moved away from the others, and was watching curiously. Bernard seemed to want to say something that he didn't know how to begin..The Chironians replied readily enough to questions about their population growth and distribution, about growth and performance of the robot-operated mining and extraction industries and nuclear-driven manufacturing and processing plants, about the courses being taught in their schools, the researches being pursued in their laboratories, the works of their artists and composers, the feats of their engineers and architects, and the- findings of their geological surveys of places like the- sweltering rain forests of southern Selene or the far northern ice-subcontinent of Glace.. "Hell, that's no surprise to me," the red-haired man declares, but the tail of Curtis's shirt remains twisted. Geneva frowned at Micky, and Micky shrugged. She didn't know whether these tales of Sinsemilla's. "Just wondering how I ever took pleasure in this line of work." Lechat pursed his lips for a second, and then nodded curtly. "It do it," he said simply. He averted his eyes for a moment longer, and then looked across at Celia. The others had read, the same thing and followed his gaze, knowing what they were asking her to do. Colman could see the torment in her eyes as she looked back at Lechat. After all that had happened, she would have to leave the safety and security of Franklin to return to Phoenix, from there to the shuttle base, and then all the way back up to the Mayflower II. There was no other way..maintenance ladders, and catwalks. There was no other way through or round the bulkhead.
