She went to the house, set out her supper of smoked meat and bread and summer lettuce, and ate it completely forgot! I couldn't find him, you understand. So I'll look for a hotel. There are hotels?" "I don't know. Perhaps," she answered. She drew a deep breath. "You know, now, why I." "I don't know," Dragonfly said. "To hear about the Great House is wonderful, but I thought the people there would be - I don't know. Of course they're mostly just boys when they go there. But I thought they'd be..." She gazed off at the sheep on the hill, her face troubled. "Some of them are really bad and stupid," she said in a low voice. "They get into the School because they're rich. And they study there just to get richer. Or to get power." "I won't go," he said. "Anywhere. Ever." He slept there, on the ground. At sunrise he got up and walked by the high road over to Re Albi. Diamond might take place at any time during the last couple of hundred years in Earthsea; after. The poem begins with the best known and most cherished love story in the Archipelago, that of Morred and Elfarran. In the third year of his reign, the young king went south to the largest island of the Archipelago, Havnor, to settle disputes among the city-states there. Returning in his "oarless longship," he came to the island Solea and there saw Elfarran, the Islewoman or Lady of Solea, "in the orchards in the spring." He did not continue on to Enlad, but stayed with Elfarran. To pledge his troth he gave her a silver bracelet or arm ring, the treasure of his family, on which was engraved a unique and powerful True Rune. His eyes dazzled. The lightning was in Rose's eyes, and her hands sparked as she clenched them. And they talked about that, all the wise women of the island: what was the true art of magic, and where did it turn false; how the balance of things was kept or lost; what crafts were needful, which useful, which dangerous; why some people had one gift but not another, and whether you could learn an art you had no native gift for. In such discussions they worked out the names that ever since have been given to the masteries: finding, weather-working, changing, healing, summoning, patterning, naming, and the crafts of illusion, and the knowledge of the songs. Those are the arts of the Masters of Roke even now, though the Chanter took the Finder's place when finding came to be considered a merely useful craft unworthy of a mage. Bitterly he recognized that he was always believing his own lies, caught in nets he had. "Bringing them a student - yes. A student of great gifts!". Gelluk had never met a man he feared.
